My Family and I are in deep appreciation to God for the financial support, prayers, and fact that we know that we are not alone. Your concern and support is a great encouragement to us. We bless God for the partnership. Thank you. God is still faithful to us, in every way. The church is moving on, gradually. Slow but steady. The fellow who left the church over doctrinal issue (he being a Pentecostal) returned. The choir membership is growing. Our Saturday soul winning team has grown relatively larger. The people are excited. A man in the church (member) had a very bad accident three weeks ago, but is now getting better. He was in service on Sunday, praise God!

Pray with me for John Odetokun: he's been living with a woman who isn't his wife. For some reason this woman's husband has abandoned her and the children ever since he relocated to the United States two years ago. I told him the seriousness of this situation before God but he took it impatiently. We're still working on it, prayerfully.

We are also still praying for a structure for the children, church toilets, mini wall round the church in order to keep the Fulani herdsmen away from the premises, the completion of our church floor, the wiring of the church, and an organist to play the keyboard we just received. Please pray with us.

Thanks, God bless you.
